What a week for animal news. A rare species of dark-purple jellyfish appeared in San Diego Bay and four new subspecies of octopus were discovered in Antarctic waters—and those weren't even the biggest stories of the week about invertebrate sea life. Check out some of the happy, sad and just plain strange news of the week about our fauna friends.

That's how many Kindle e-books Amazon sold in the United States for every 100 hardcovers over the past three months, CEO Jeff Bezos said, according to CNN. The number jumps to 180 Kindle titles for every 100 hardbacks over the past month, but e-books still trail sales of paperbacks.

PELICAN RESCUE

Brookfield Zoo in the Chicago suburbs accepted five American white pelicans that were rescued from the oil spill off the coast of Louisiana, the Tribune reported. The birds received physicals Wednesday. They will be in quarantine for at least 30 days before going on permanent exhibit.

WHALE ENCOUNTER

A southern right whale leaped out of the water and crashed onto the deck of a sailboat off the coast of Cape Town, South Africa, CNN reported. The boat was badly damaged, but nobody—not even the whale, according to reports—was injured in the incident.

MONKEY SMUGGLER

Authorities in Mexico City detained a man arriving on a flight from Lima, Peru, with 18 titi monkeys hidden beneath his clothes, according to CNN. Sadly, two of the tiny monkeys the man was carrying on a belt were dead.

JELLYFISH ATTACK

As many as 150 beachgoers were stung by the remains of a jellyfish at Wallis Sands State Park in Rye, N.H. Park officials attempted to remove the giant, dead jellyfish, Reuters reported, but it broke apart and the remnants stung the swimmers.

OCTOPUS GIFT

A delegation of Spaniards that included Carballino Mayor Carlos Alberto Montes Maques traveled to Oberhausen, Germany, to deliver a gift basket to Paul the octopus, according to CNN. Paul, we all recall, is the octopus who correctly “predicted” eight World Cup soccer results, including Spain's victory in the final.

LAKE-EFFECT SHOW

Ahoy! Young Chicagoans diving into boat ownership

By Scott Bolohan

FOR REDEYE

It might seem like everybody is looking at Nick Gauen. And there's a good reason for it.

He's on a boat.

"Having a boat is awesome," the Lakeview resident said of Liquid Assets, the 26½-foot open bow Bayliner he purchased two months ago with his roommate, Ben Johnson. "Best investment I've ever made."

Gauen and Johnson, both 29, are enjoying the attention.

"We are the Lewis and Clark of 20-something yachting," Gauen said.

As the economy slowly recovers, the Chicago scene is attracting a new breed of boaters who are young, single, have disposable money and want to have fun. Naturally, they also attract friends they never knew were there.

This weekend, all eyes will be on the lake as 3,500 sailors compete in the annual Race to Mackinac, the longest freshwater sailing event in the world, stretching 333 miles from Chicago to Mackinac Island.

Getting into boating in Chicago is easier than you might think, according to John Schellenbach, who will participate in his 11th Chicago-to-Mackinac race this year with his Tartan Ten sailboat, Mutiny.

"Boat owners always need crew," the 36-year-old Lincoln Park resident said. "If you are willing to hop on a boat and learn, it's easy to get into. It's very welcoming to new people."

While the lake beckons every summer, the economy has had more of an effect on Chicago boaters the past couple of years than any crosswind. But there's been a rebound this year, according to Lou Sandoval, owner of Karma Yacht Sales in Bridgeport, who has seen the median age of his clients slowly drop during the past decade.

"It has been a busy spring on many levels," said Sandoval, who sells Beneteau sailboats that range in price from $50,000 to $300,000 for a pre-owned boat and from $100,000 to $750,000 for a new model. "There is a new shift toward smaller boats—32 feet and smaller—with an emphasis on technology, performance, agility and styling."

Aluminum outboard boats and pre-owned boats have seen growth in sales, according to Thom Dammrich, president of National Marine Manufacturers Association, and sales of boats less than 30 feet long also have remained steady.

"Boat sales are pretty closely tied to consumer confidence," Dammrich said, but new sales "will probably be down this year."

Terry Tatar-Donato, 33, of Jefferson Park, and her husband won't even have their boat, Eilyi-anne, in the water this summer. She's in storage as they "recover" from the economy—"Owning a boat is not cheap," Tatar-Donato said—which is a shame considering their 28-foot 1985 Century includes a dance floor.

"Lots of people will add little bells and whistles, maybe a bigger engine, but you will not see many black boats with twin 350s and a neon purple dance floor," Tatar-Donato said.

With Chicago's frigid winters, the small window of prime sailing time makes Chicago boating a bit of an obsession, Schellenbach said.

"Obviously, I wouldn't do this if it wasn't a lot of fun," he said. "You jam a lot into the months you have to sail. You kind of give up your summers to the boat, but it's worth it."

Gauen certainly has no regrets about buying Liquid Assets.

"It's opened up a world of opportunities," he said. "It's been a great way to bring people together. I don't think anyone out there has leveraged their boat as a greater resource or had more fun with it. If it explodes tomorrow and sinks to the bottom of the deep blue sea, it will be worth every penny." SCOTT BOLOHAN IS A REDEYE SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR.

BRENT LEWIS/REDEYE

OH, CAPTAIN!

You've heard the old saying that there are a lot of fish in the sea? In Chicago, there also are a lot of boaters—and it turns out they have more than a few tales to tell. Meet a handful of the big fish who dock their boats in Chicago's harbors. S.B.

Nick Gauen Lakeview, 29 »

What's the name of your boat? Liquid Assets. The only safe place to invest in the economy is cash and yachts.

Do you have any rules on the boat? We don't believe in rules. But our engine won't start with less than a 7:1 female-to-male ratio.

What is the coolest thing you've done on your boat? We had the Stanley Cup. Olympic gold medalist gymnast Paul Hamm did a routine that turned into a diving contest.

Do you make people call you captain on the boat? I prefer to go by admiral, but captain is acceptable.

How can people get invited on your boat? An invitation on our boat is harder to come by than a golden ticket to Willy Wonka's Chocolate Factory.

BRENT LEWIS/REDEYE

« John Schellenbach

Lincoln Square, 36

What's the name of your boat? Mutiny. I used to sail on another boat, so it was a personal mutiny.

What's the coolest thing on your boat? A grill. I once grilled during an entire race and came in third.

How do people try to talk their way onto your boat? People don't generally have to talk their way on. But beer and beef jerky don't hurt.

What's your best boat story? On Jan. 13, 2009, I saw Jimmy Buffett playing on the beach in Anegada in the British Virgin Islands.

Do you make your friends call you captain? I tried, and it doesn't work.

« Lindsey Duda Old Town, 27

What's the name of your boat? Sin Duda, which means "without a doubt" in Spanish. It's also a pun.

Do you use your boat in pickup lines? Without a doubt.

Do you have any rules on your boat? Every time crew member Aaron talks about his baby, he has to take a shot.

Be honest. Have you ever played or sung "I'm on a Boat" on your boat? Yes. But M.I.A.'s "Paper Planes" is the unofficial boat song. Also a lot of Notorious B.I.G. and Neil Diamond.

« Matt Boren Roscoe Village, 30

What's the name of your boat and why? Semper Fi. It was named by the old owner, and I haven't taken the time to rename it.

What's the coolest thing on your boat? A cooler full of beer. Captain and first mate (wife) are not responsible for the beer, the crew is.

Do you have any rules on your boat? Semper Fi doesn't run off "thank yous," it runs off gas. So pitch in.

Are there any secret spots you like to take the boat? To listen to the bands play off Northerly Island.

'Mad' about Hamm

Jon Hamm
as Don Draper
in 'Mad Men'
AMC

By David Kipen

THE HOLLYWOOD REPORTER

One surefire sign of a TV series in its prime comes when an episode's plot and subplots dovetail so stylishly that it's difficult to tell which is which.

What's the "A" story in Sunday's season premiere of AMC's network-redefining "Mad Men"? Is it silky adman Don Draper (Jon Hamm) learning how to play with the big boys, now that he's left his career as a 1964 organization man and struck out on his own? Or Draper negotiating the tricky diminuendo of his wrecked marriage to wounded housewife Betty (January Jones), hastily remarried but reluctant to relinquish the house they once shared? Or might it even be plucky Peggy (Elisabeth Moss) spitballing a PR stunt to buoy the fledgling firm's iffy fortunes—leading as ever with her forehead, as if every glass partition in the Time-Life Building were yet another glass ceiling lying in wait to thwart her progress?

It's all three, of course—not a "B" story in the bunch. Four seasons into guiding the hit show that changed how not just AMC but all of basic cable goes about its business, series creator Matthew Weiner could almost be forgiven for resting his loafers on the writers' room table and coasting. Instead, he takes sole writing credit on the premiere, an eventfully plotted yet literally elliptical hour of highly professional TV.

As Draper and his Sterling colleagues demonstrate again in this auspicious premiere, there's no shark tank like a goldfish bowl.

TV Being Human

9 p.m. Saturday, BBC America

As Season 2 of the soulful and sharp British creature feature begins, flatmates George (were-wolf), Mitchell (vampire) and Annie (ghost) still just want to fit in. But "normal" is something they never may find. The vampire coven seeks vengeance against Mitchell, Annie runs afoul of Death and guilt wracks poor George after he shares his curse with girlfriend Nina. But despite all the supernatural powers aligning against them, our terrific threesome's most sinister, scary foe turns out to be human.

SONG Club Can't Handle Me

Flo Rida

Flo Rida's new single is so close to the Black Eyed Peas' smash "I Gotta Feeling" that it's easy to mistake it for just another remix. The synths, the backing vocals, the beat—all similar. However, with both songs handled by producer-dance music titan David Guetta, there won't be any legal beefing, meaning Flo's in the clear. In other words, I gotta feeling Flo Rida's gonna have a big hit, that Flo Rida's gonna have a big, big hit.

TV My Boys

9 and 9:30 p.m. Sunday, TBS

"My Boys" has been inconsistent in its first three seasons, but fans could always count on Jim Gaffigan for a few laughs. So it's a little surprising that the show's fourth season—sans Gaffigan—opens with back-to-back funny episodes. In the first, "Addition By Subtraction," the current lovebirds remember their first meetings as they try to replace Gaffigan's Andy at their weekly poker game. PJ (Jordana Spiro) blew off Bobby (Kyle Howard), while Stephanie (Kellee Stewart) wanted nothing to do with then-insult-waiter Kenny (Michael Bunin). In "Gourmet and Confused," Mike (Jamie Kaler) feels left out when the couples go to a fancy restaurant, so he talks Brendan (Reid Scott) into joining him at an upscale bar. CURT WAGNER, REDEYE

ALBUM 100 Miles From Memphis

Sheryl Crow

After a few turbulent years that included a very public bout with breast cancer and an even more public breakup with Lance Armstrong, Sheryl Crow has returned with the best work of her career. Justin Timberlake backs her up on a sultry reworking of Terence Trent D'Arby's "Sign Your Name," while Citizen Cope drops by for her take on his song "Sideways." And the bonus track is "I Want You Back," a sweet tribute to Michael Jackson, for whom Crow used to work as a backing singer. GLENN GAMBOA, NEWSDAY

LOATHE IT

DVD AND BLU-RAY The Losers

Available now

An adaptation of the Vertigo comic book series of the same name by Andy Diggle, "The Losers" takes the baton from 2005's "Elektra" and 2003's "Daredevil" as the worst comic-book adaptation to date. With the exception of a couple of decent action sequences and a few stylishly slick touches, "The Losers" drowns in a collection of lousy special effects, boring characters, spotty story development and clichés. Go retro with Ramona

Middle child Ramona (Joey King) is tired of losing attention to her baby sister and beautiful teenage sister Beatrice, nicknamed Beezus (Selena Gomez). Maybe the well-intentioned but troublemaking Ramona (age 9 years, 3 months), who cares more about imagination than correct spelling, will get the recognition she deserves when she works to save the family house after Dad (John Corbett) loses his job.

The buzz: This kid flick is based on the first of Beverly Cleary's novels about the Quimby family. Count on several people out there with fond memories of pre-teen reading material wanting to see Ramona—who also was featured in a Canadian TV series starring Sarah Polley—on the big screen.

The verdict: If only everyone older than 20 would go away. Josh Duhamel and Ginnifer Goodwin look totally wrong together in an unfortunate subplot about reunited high school sweethearts. Corbett and Bridget Moynahan (as mother Quimby) also are constantly out-acted by Gomez and the terrific King, who deserves her own TV show pronto. Ignoring the awkward slapstick comedy, given no life by director Elizabeth Allen ("Aquamarine"), the film has a lot of charm in its presentation of a world where "funner" is a word and getting your own room is a major acquisition. To its credit and occasional folly, "Ramona and Beezus" is goofy and candy-coated like childhood, with only a pretend grip on real life.

Hot Stax

By Lisa Balde

For all the restaurants that have opened or plan to open on Taylor Street's up-and-coming strip in Little Italy, breakfast spots aren't high among them. That's probably why Sweet Maple Cafe continues to see brunch lines out the door and why Stax Cafe, which opened less than two weeks ago, was packed on opening weekend. "There's a lot of potential here on Taylor Street," says owner Spiro Tsaldaris, who opened Stax as a neighborhood breakfast and lunch destination. So far the neighbors are on board.

Server says: Try the pancakes. There's something for every taste, whether you want sweet (chocolate chip almond, $9), fruit (blueberry, $8) or both (pine-apple upside down, $9, above). Yes, there's also classic with syrup ($7.50).

We say: Get the pancakes. Per the name, Stax knows its batter, and these cakes, prepared under the direction of chef Chris Barron, who's put in time around town at Market, Opera and Park 52, are as fluffy as they come. Sides aren't included, so consider an a la carte order of chicken apple sausage or black pepper bacon ($3.50 each). If you want a taste without dedicating your entire breakfast to pancakes, mini versions accompany omelets.

Take a pass on: Soft drinks. Small glass bottles of Coke and Diet Coke ($1.50) pale in comparison to fresh carrot, orange, grapefruit, apple and grape juice ($3-$5) and six teas from Mighty Leaf Tea Company ($2).

Is it lunchtime yet? Stax loves breakfast so much that servers wear T-shirts that read, "We're breakfast poets. Oh, how we love thee ..." But lunch gets a say too. A robust list of sandwiches, wraps, soups and salads includes beef and turkey burgers ($9.50), falafel sliders ($9) and tomato salad ($10) with feta, pickled red onions and cucumbers.

Crowd surfing: Expect a crowd of young families, UIC students and lots of neighborhood couples digging into pancakes and eggs. Space is tight in the 85-seat dining room, so expect to overhear conversations and share space with kids and strollers. Request one of 13 counter seats by the open kitchen to get away from it all.

Sweet stuff: On weekends, save room for a complimentary brownie or cookie at the register when you pay your bill. They're made by Tsaldaris' mom.

All that jazz

Bulls bring in soothing sounds of former Utah stars

By Ryan Smith FOR REDEYE

It's beginning to feel a bit more jazzy in Chicago. That's because three of the Bulls' offseason acquisitions—Carlos Boozer, Corey Brewer, and Kyle Korver—all are former members of the Utah Jazz. We could mention that two of the three also sound like they would be welcome additions to the Chicago legacy of alcohol consumption, but considering the Windy City also has a rich tradition as a music town, RedEye compares these former Salt Lakers to different genres of jazz music. RYAN SMITH IS A REDEYE SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR.

Carlos Boozer POWER FORWARD

Jazz style: Big band

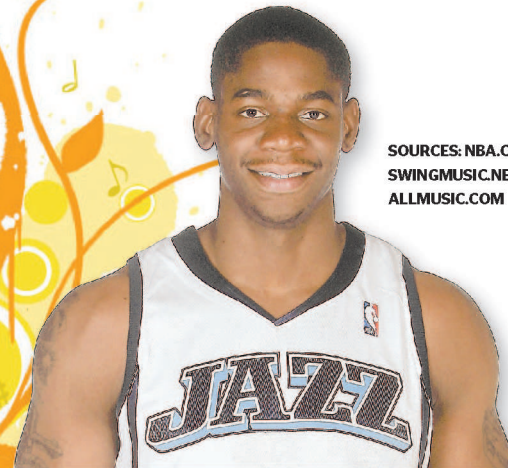

With a 6-foot-9, 266-pound frame, Boozer is big enough to compare to the full, often powerful sound of the big band orchestras that became popular in the 1920s and '30s with bandleaders such as Duke Ellington and Glenn Miller. As opposed to the highly improvised kind of music played by smaller traditional jazz groups, big band music is more arranged, just as Boozer's post-up game works best in a more structured offense such as the one employed by Jazz coach Jerry Sloan.

Kyle Korver SMALL FORWARD

Jazz style: Smooth jazz

Most embodied by the oft-mocked Kenny G, the bland, mellow style of smooth jazz is known for being inoffensive background music—the kind you hear in department stores or on The Weather Channel. Besides looking as handsomely whitebread as smooth jazz is accused of sounding, Korver's game is pretty plain. He's almost exclusively on the basketball court to hoist 3-pointers when he's open.

Ronnie Brewer GUARD

Jazz style: Avant-garde

In the 1960s, John Coltrane and Miles Davis helped lay the groundwork for an improvisational, unconventional sound that became known as avant-garde jazz. Similarly, Brewer sports an unusual sort of jump shot he improvised after breaking his arm in a water-slide accident as a kid. And like avant-garde jazz, Brewer is a little difficult to predict because his size and skill set are fitting of a guard/forward hybrid.

Enter a number between 1 and 9 in the empty squares. The clues are the numbers in the white circles that give the sum of the solution numbers: above the line are across clues; below the line are down clues. Thus, a clue of 3 will produce a solution of 2 and 1, and a 5 will produce 4 and 1, or 2 and 3, but, of course, which squares they go in will depend on the solution of a clue in the other direction. No digit can be repeated in a solution. Answer at redteychicago.com/puzzles. EDITED BY MICHAEL MEPHAM

Make a 2- to 7-letter word from the letters in each row. Add points of each word, using scoring directions at right. Finally, 7-letter words get a 50-point bonus. “Blanks” used as any letter have no point value. All the words are in the Official Scrabble Players Dictionary, 4th Edition. “Who is Salt?”

Uh, hello, dumb movie poster. Salt is Angelina Jolie. She’s right there, in close-up, on your face.

Outside the multiplex lobby though, the answer to the question “Who is Salt?” may not be quite so obvious. Yes, salt most commonly refers to the tableside condiment, but there’s a slew of other salty references out there in pop culture. Angie’s sexy CIA flick, out this weekend, is only the latest.

So, Chicago’s own Morton Salt girl aside, here’s a list of how we could obnoxiously answer that movie poster’s question, if we really wanted to be annoying.

Searching for Salt

... A SPOILED LITTLE RICH GIRL WHO REALLY WANTS A GOLDEN EGG-LAYING GOOSE.

Veruca Salt, you’ll remember, didn’t impress Willy Wonka with her materialistic demands and was deemed a “bad egg”—though she did inspire an alt-rock band.

... A FRIEND OF THOMAS THE TANK ENGINE. Salty, the dockside diesel, is a rough-around-the-edges old-timer who spins a good yarn.

... CHERYL WRAY, TITLE MEMBER OF ‘90S RAP GROUP SALT-N-PEPA. As the Salt to Sandy Denton’s Pepa, she taught us to talk about sex ... and shoop.

SALT IS ...

... THE REASON THESE PRETZELS ARE MAKING ME THIRSTY. Remember on “Seinfeld,” when Kramer got a one-line part in a Woody Allen movie? Those pretzels sure made him thirsty. Why? Because they’re salty.

... THE SECRET INGREDIENT IN CHEF’S FAVORITE RECIPE. Chef always offered up his “chocolate salty balls” to the “South Park” gang. Ahem. Pastries. We’re talking about pastries here.

... A FLIPPER WANNABE. The 1974 TV show “Salty,” which followed the adventures of a boy and his sea lion, was the less successful, though still adorable, “Flipper.”

DEAR BRAD ...

Tina Fey hangs out Thursday with a cardboard cutout of Brad Pitt at Comic-Con. GETTY IMAGES

Tina Fey is on a mega-mission to meet Brad Pitt.

The two voiced characters in the upcoming animated movie "Megamind," but they never connected because they recorded their lines at different times. Fey told People magazine Thursday at San Diego's Comic-Con International that she's confident they will get together.

"I've sent him over 100 letters saying that I'm pretty sure we're going to meet. And 100 chunks of my hair. If that's not a great gift, then one of us is crazy," the "30 Rock" star said.

Sounds like a page out of the Liz Lemon playbook.

"The only reason why people talk negative is because they're jealous. Every time they call me a midget, Oompa-Loompa, orange, they're just jealous. It makes me want to be more ridiculous and more stupid."

GLAAD wants its MTV

MTV received the first "excellent" rating ever handed out in the Gay & Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation's third annual survey of gay-friendly programming, hollywoodreporter.com reports. CW was tops among networks, receiving a score of 35 percent of programming deemed inclusive. CBS ranked last among the networks with a 7 percent score.

Bruised but OK

Smashing Pumpkins frontman Billy Corgan blacked out when he fell Thursday during a performance in Tampa, Fla., according to people.com. Corgan said it wasn't a stage move or him being clumsy. "That was me blacking out and wiping out," he tweeted. "I have no memory of falling against the drum riser and my guitar cabinet, but I can tell you I've got quite a good bruise + am moving slow." People.com reported Corgan's fall won't affect the Pumpkins' tour.

Pre-burn treatment?

If you can't get enough of Sam Axe (played by Bruce Campbell) on "Burn Notice," perk up your ears. According to the L.A. Times, cable network USA is in talks to produce an Axe-centric prequel to the spy show. Campbell (left), the beloved-to-nerds star of the "Evil Dead" movies, also suggested at Comic-Con that there could be a "Burn Notice" movie someday.
